NATIONAL PARTICIPATION REPORT

INTRODUCTION

2020 was shaping up to be one of the biggest years yet for Australian football and its 1.96 million participants. Participation numbers were at an all-time high, the A-League would wrap up its 15th season, the Westfield W-League had some of our brightest female talent, our Westfield Matildas and Olyroos were vying for qualification to the Tokyo Olympics, our Socceroos went into 2020 on top of their FIFA World Cup Qatar 2022™ qualification group, and Football Australia were in the final stages of bidding as co-host of the FIFA Women's World Cup 2023™.

Opening the pages of 2020, however, would see us inherit one of our most difficult summers recorded as bushfires ravaged significant parts of the country. Loss of property and life, and the impact on flora and fauna left communities and ecosystems across Australia devastated. Football played its part with a number of key initiatives including the dedication of Rounds 14 and 15 of the A-League season to the work of Rural Aid in its efforts to support first-respondents and those in need.

As we commenced the process of recovery however, we saw the emergence of a new threat, not just to football but on economies and to human life. The COVID-19 pandemic tested Australian football in an unprecedented way and resulted in the suspension of football across the country.

This challenged and disrupted the traditional functioning of Australian football activities at all levels. Consequently, we are likely to feel the impact for years to come as we look to recover from the unprecedented drop in participation numbers and expected depressed economic conditions that threaten previous levels of support. In response, like all other industries and sections of the community at large, football's governing bodies at all levels of the game took the necessary steps to stabilise the game and made the required adjustments to ensure that football was in a strong position to recover.

It is important to also recognise the ongoing support from the Federal, State and Local Governments throughout Australia, who have responded and supported our sport throughout the COVID-19 pandemic.

After playing its role as a responsible citizen and performing its civic duty during the height of the pandemic, football was able to resume in most places across Australia with outdoor football activities.

COVID-19 impacted all of the States and Territories this year to varying degrees with Victoria and NSW affected the most, however despite the hardship, we were able to see some positive highlights in 2020 such as Northern Territory which reported participation growth in 2020. Whilst we experienced a decrease nationally in outdoor participation of 13% as a direct consequence of the COVID-19 pandemic, Victoria experienced a much larger decrease of 27% because of the prolonged effects of the lock down within the state.

The resumption of football breathed life back into our game and meant that our football community was able to come together to enjoy the game which we all love. Unfortunately, this was not the case in Victoria which endured more devastating and longer lasting effects of the pandemic, than anywhere else in Australia.

Pleasingly, we experienced an increase across Coaches & Volunteers during the year, which are essential to delivering such a wide-reaching football offer within Australia, especially during such a challenging year as was 2020. We thank all those involved in the delivery of the game for their patience, understanding and additional time required this season.

In response to the disruption, we brought football into the digital sphere with online resources & sessions such as the Skills Hub with play at home challenges catering for players from MiniRoos to Walking Football. We introduced online webinars and coaching seminars & have shown to be resilient and flexible in our approach to delivering football in 2020.

The biggest impact of COVID-19 was felt in the schools and community programs, accounting for 86% of the total participation decrease for 2020. Within this A-League and Westfield W-League clubs' delivery was down by 50% because of COVID-19 restrictions, impacting the number of participants being able to take up the community and school programs on offer. Out of necessity and for public safety, many schools moved to remote learning and in doing so restricted access to external providers.

As part of the response, Football Australia, in partnership with the A-League, Westfield W-League clubs and the Member Federations, created the Schools Football Workbook, an online and interactive football resource for Primary Schools, enabling teachers and students to learn from home.

We were pleased to see outdoor football fared relatively well this season with a moderate drop in participation, due to COVID-19. Victoria's long lockdown meant that an entire season of football was lost in its entirety. Despite the difficult season, we had Member Federations, Associations, Clubs and Volunteers working together to bring football back to most parts of the population who were in need of the benefits that football brings (physical activity, social cohesion, a feeling of community and connection).

Women and Girls represented 143,873 participants in outdoor football, social and registered futsal, down from 156,893 in 2019, representing an 8% decrease in 2020.

There is much to be excited about in the year ahead. The granting of co-hosting rights to the FIFA Women's World Cup 2023™ was a watershed moment for Australian football. The announcement united the entire nation around the game and galvanised the Australian football community behind a common cause, demonstrating the power and potential of women's football in Australia. The ongoing growth and development of Australian football will be anchored in women's football and significant work with Member Federations, Governments and other stakeholders, has already gone into ensuring that we can maximise the benefits of hosting the FIFA Women's World Cup 2023™ via the establishment of an innovative legacy framework.

Despite challenging circumstances, Football Australia has been able to consider its long-term vision and aspirations for the game and took the opportunity to return to its football core. Following the announcement of Australia as co-host of the FIFA Women's World Cup 2023™ and after a period of robust and extensive consultation with the football community, Football Australia took transformative steps and published its 'XI Principles for the future of Australian football', which advances eleven principles that underpin a bold and innovative 15-year vision for Australian football.

At the centre of the XI Principles is the recognition of the strength and diversity of the Australian football family. We are a melting pot of two million participants (1.2 million now in 2020) represented by over 200 different cultures. No other sport within the Australian sporting landscape offers the type of inherent diversity which football does. This diversity in culture, ideas and experience makes us strong and prepares us well for the challenges which lie ahead of us.

To highlight a significant year for the game in 2020, the organisation underwent an internal reshaping to ensure we are ready to implement our strategic agenda, renamed the organisation Football Australia, revamped the FFA Cup and recently announced the unbundling of the Professional Leagues.

The publication of the Domestic Transfer System White Paper, following the Transfer System webinars late last year, is another significant step as we look to bring to life the XI Principles and we are excited to lead with this strategic initiative in 2021.

The way in which the Australian football community conducted itself during 2020, supported by our Member Federations, was exemplary. Our 2020 participation figures, considering the enormous challenges, are a credit to the efforts of our Member Federations, A-League and Westfield W-League Clubs, Associations, Zones, Community Clubs, and large volunteer base.

On behalf of Football Australia, we want to thank you all for your commitment, dedication, and support. We have been able to navigate our way through a difficult period because of a spirit of collaboration borne from a deep love of our game. You can all be extremely proud of your efforts; they have certainly inspired us.
